Émilie du Châtelet

Choose the right colors for you

How many times happen to be in front of the cabinet and ask the same question, "What shall I wear?" More or less every morning, right?

To address this problem, common to many, there is a simple and intuitive method rely on nature. Better yet, the seasons. Following these few, but effective, straight you can figure out what colors suit you and create stunning looks for all occasions.

To make the analysis more precise and detailed is necessary to take into account a number of benchmarks fundamental data from your natural color of the skin, eyes and hair to find an assonance with the colors expressed in nature. As every person has certain colors that make it unique, so each season is marked by various shades.

This method of combining their colors with those around us has a solid and proven groundwork that we can find into armocromia approaching, useful method to study the nuances of personal color. The basic idea is to find the set of colors that allow to exploit at best the natural physical characteristics of each.

We must first understand what are the distinctive color to be considered, namely:

- temperature (warm / cold)
- saturated (more intense or less intense)
- brightness

The armocromia classical determines the membership of a season rather than to another starting from the hue of the skin and, secondly, by the ratio of the complexion with eyes and hair; thus identifying the 4 main groups:

- Winter (cool colors and saturated)
- Summer (cool colors and unsaturated)
- Autumn (warm colors and saturated)
- Spring (warm colors and unsaturated)

The technique of harmonizing colors of the face with the clothes we wear (but also with nuances of makeup and hair) is really in use in the star system, many actresses, in fact, rely on the treatment of their image with industry experts who are able to enhance their strengths in any situation. Also we can make in our little treasure of the same "tricks" of the star inspiration to those who belong to our season, stealing a secret useful for our style.

Let's look at the four seasons to figure out which one is better:

FALL. Fall has warm colors, deep and mitigated. It 's the season of harvest and wealth that carries us, gently, away from the warm breath of summer. Intense and rich tones dominate expressing softness and stability; give a harmonious, balanced and rich beauty.
